

About Us

Oxbridge Consulting has a background in strategic marketing and business development for new innovative technology ventures and major multinationals. Oxbridge is centred in Cambridge, UK, Europe's leading magnet for new science and technology enterprises.

Greater Cambridge is the largest and most dynamic cluster of ICT business in Europe and the leading development centre for many computing and telecommunication and bioscience technologies. Knowledge based industries represent one third of the economy and five times the UK average are employed in R&D. Local GDP is growing at more than twice the national average.

The region has the advantages of:

- High capacity for innovationsrenowned and diverse science and research infrastructure
- Education and knowledge structure
- Entrepreneurial environment
- Advanced business service and financial support networkingGood communications
- International outlook and high inward investmentsLarge number of small companies and niche players with few large companies

Cambridge is the base for R&D activities of major international companies such as Microsoft, Toshiba, Nokia, as well as home to leading ICT companies like Symbian, Autonomy, Generics, ADL, Ubinetics, CSR, CCL, ARM, TTPCom. The company's founders have an international track record in new venture formation, technology commercialisation and new market entry successes, as well as creating and managing marketing operations for technology based companies.